Why do Libraries Offer Publishing?

A new role for the library

Libraries are currently undergoing a seismic shift in staff activities and responsibilities... it is an exciting prospect for libraries to become active producers instead of passive consumers of content.

Paul Royster, Coordinator of Scholarly Communications, University of Nebraska-Lincoln
“The Open Access Interviews: Paul Royster,” Richard Poynder's blog, Open and Shut

While circulation numbers are in decline, the need for support for scholarly communication is on the rise.

This provides an opportunity for the library to reposition itself and reassert its value as the center of campus academic life.

Todd Bruns, Eastern Illinois University
“It Takes a Library: Growing a Robust IR in Two Years”

*Our job is not to build a better library—it's to figure out how best to use our skills and talents to advance the goals of our communities. Sometimes that means we'll be doing things that nobody ever associated with a library before.

International Journal of
EXERCISE SCIENCE

Home > IJES

Follow

The primary aim of the International Journal of Exercise Science is to engage undergraduate and graduate students in scholarly activity as authors and reviewers as they develop into professionals. In accordance with this aim, on manuscript submissions it is mandatory that at least one author be a student that has played a prominent role in the overall study (see About IJES).

If you have any questions about the International Journal of Exercise Science, please email us at editor@intjexersci.com.

To maintain a happy editorial board and reviewer pool the International Journal of Exercise Science will take a two month hiatus during June and July. Any manuscripts submitted during these months will not begin the pre-review process until August. Additionally, manuscripts under review during these months may take longer than our normal time course to complete. It is suggested to submit well in advance of these months in order to avoid any delays.

The Journal of Purdue Undergraduate Research has been established to publish outstanding research papers written by Purdue undergraduates from all disciplines who have completed faculty-mentored research projects. The journal is run by students, but behind the scenes is a unique partnership between Purdue University Press and other departments of Purdue University Libraries, working with Purdue Marketing and Media and the Online Writing Lab, based in the Department of English. Publication of JPUR is sponsored by the Office of the Provost at Purdue University.

We are now accepting submissions for Volume 4 to be published in August 2014. The final deadline for the 2014 volume is February 15, 2014. To submit your proposal, please use the "Submit Proposal" link on the left-hand navigation bar.

JPUR is an Open Access journal. This means that it uses a funding model that does not charge readers or their institutions for access. Readers may freely read, download, copy, distribute, print, search, or link to the full texts of articles. If you have concerns about the submission or publication terms for the Journal of Purdue Undergraduate Research, please contact the Journal Coordinator at jpur@purdue.edu.

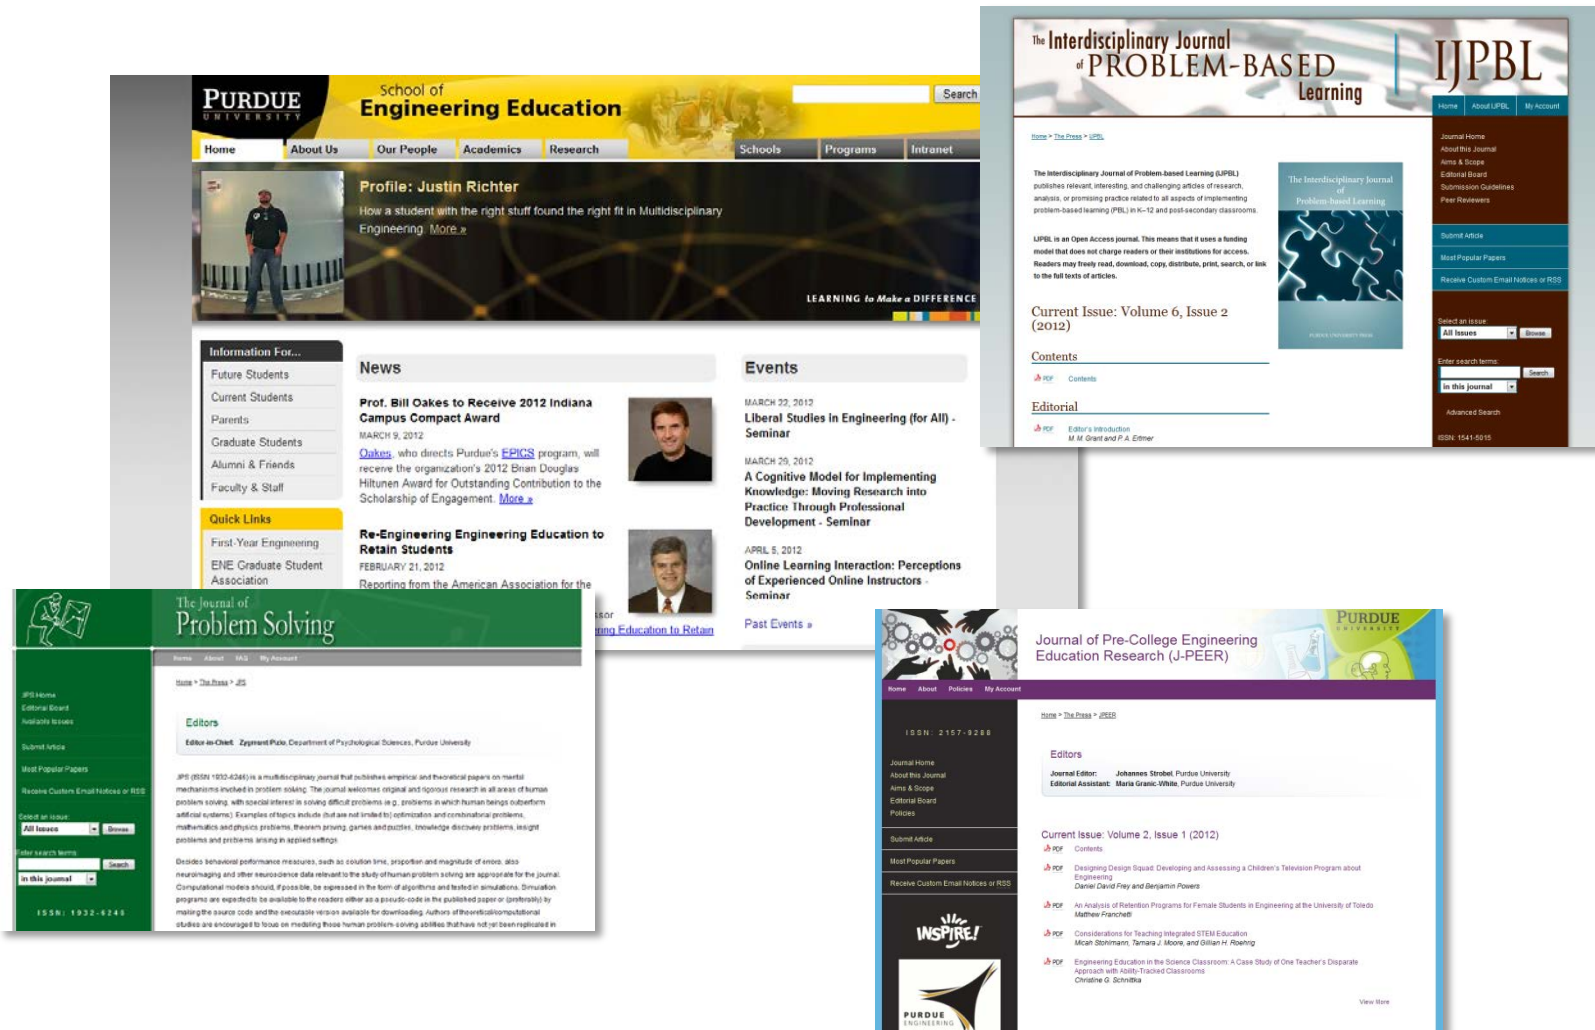

Purdue Global Design Team members ride on the student-designed Basic Utility Vehicle (BUV) with Momanyi Oteri, an ACREST technician, in Bangang, Cameroon.

In their own words

Publishing in JPUR gives students a leg up when it comes to applying for jobs and graduate schools. Heslop explains that "publishing with JPUR makes you a more attractive candidate for a career with research and writing. It's a huge advantage if you want to get a higher degree because you already know how the publishing process works."

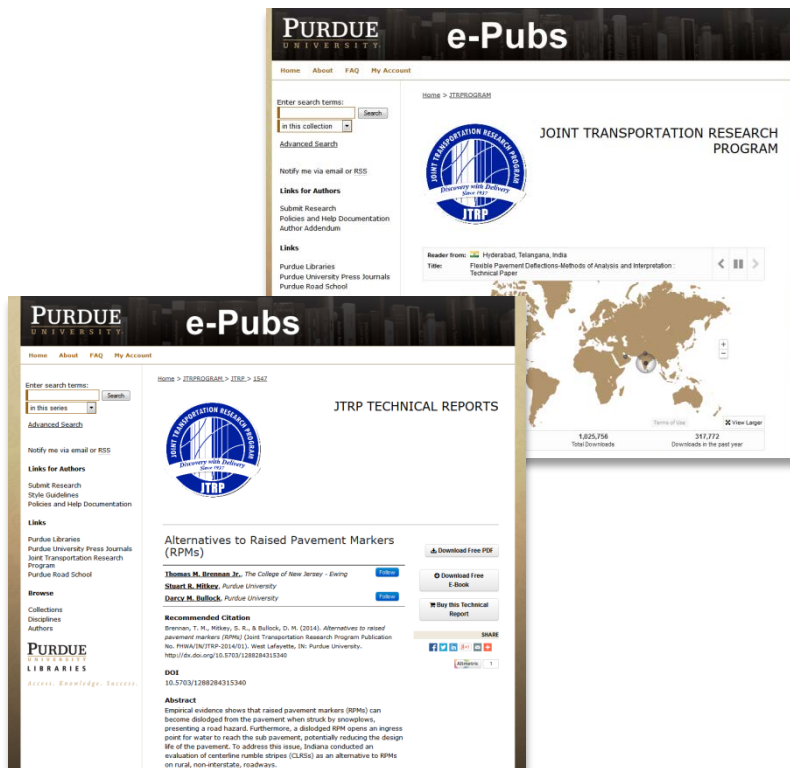

A service to the university

In their own words

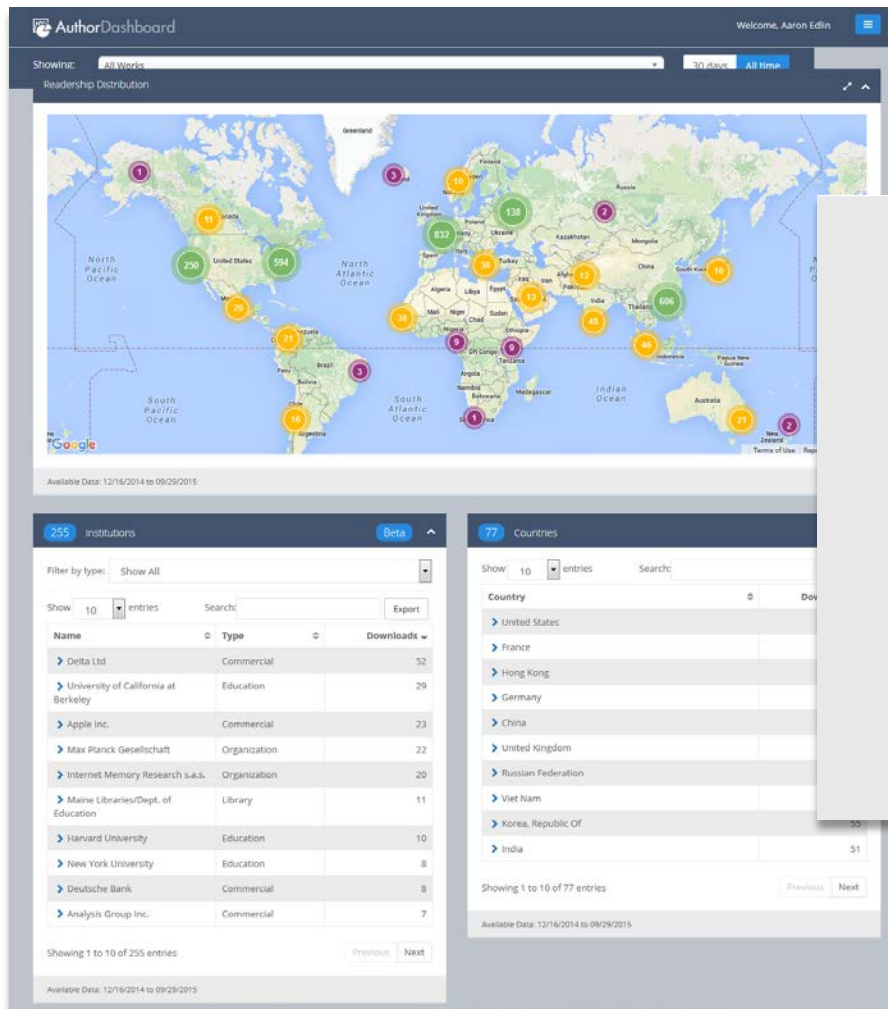

“The impact of this electronic migration has been nothing short of amazing.

This has been an incredibly valuable tool for communicating to our sponsors the impact their funded research is having.”

Darcy Bullock, Director
JTRP Program

I want to make my journal look more dynamic; what do you suggest?

We're thinking about using print on demand. How have others done this?

I've been contacted by EBSCO about my journal; should we join, and how?

Vielen Dank!
